Volume XIII

A lonely boy is standing beside a tree, reading. He probably realizes that before him is a road. But the realization of the importance of this road has probably not entered his mind. This road is comparable to the road of life facing the seniors who will soon be graduating. We, of the 1966 SIQUAERIS staff, hope that the road of life will be treated seriously by each and every senior. In this yearbook we hope to show that the road of life is before us and ready to be followed by the seniors to their destinies.

FATHER HENRY NAPARLA, O.F.M.

Fathers Henry and Cherubin have spent the last twenty-six years of their life in the priesthood helping others. In these twenty-six years they have helped innumerable students pass through the difficult years of high school, and on to attain their goals in life. In appreciation and admiration for them, the senior class dedicates this 1966 SIQUAERIS to them.

Rector

Father Hyacinth Kulinski, O.F.M.

Another successful year of running Padua has passed through the capable and busy hands of Father Hyacinth. Besides teaching freshmen and juniors Latin, he has found enough time to look after the renovation of the interior of the building. Seniors also seek advice from him regarding the choice of colleges.

Fr. Emil Rakowski, O.F.M.

Father Emil is more closely connected with interscholastic sports than any other member of the faculty. He coaches varsity soccer, cross country, junior varsity basketball, varsity baseball and the gym team. He also teaches physical education and physics, and fulfills the position of vice rector.

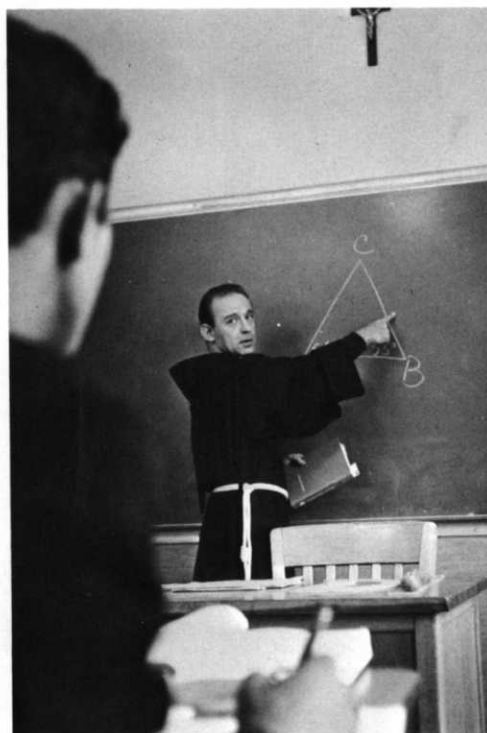

Fr. Roland Jaskulski, O.F.M.

To Father Roland falls the difficult task of keeping records of the student and school finances. He also teaches world and American history to the sophomores and juniors respectively.

Fr. Bertrand Bluma, O.F.M.

The trying job of disciplinarian is handled well by Father Bertrand. He is constantly trying to improve the relationship between the faculty and the students. He also teaches English to the seniors and sophomores.

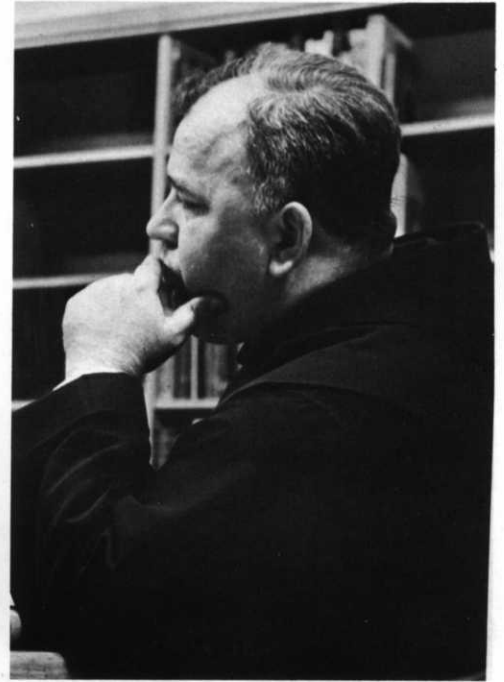

Fr. Mel Baran, O.F.M.

This is Father Mel's second year at Padua after obtaining his master's degree at Fordham University. Upon returning, he assumed the position of vice disciplinarian. His classes include trigonometry and geometry. He also holds the post of senior class moderator.

Fr. Henry Narpala, O.F.M.

Last year, Father Henry celebrated his twenty-fifth year in the Franciscan Priesthood. He is the present superior of the friary. Father teaches first and second year French in addition to managing the bookstore.

Fr. Albin Miklaszewski, O.F.M.

Father Albin has his hands full this year, teaching general science to the freshmen and biology to the sophomores and juniors. He generates his interests in the sciences to many of his students, who actively partake in actual experimentation in the lab. Father also fulfills the duties of vice guardian of the friary.

Faculty Guides and Instructs for Benefit of the Students

Fr. Brendan Wroblewski, O.F.M.

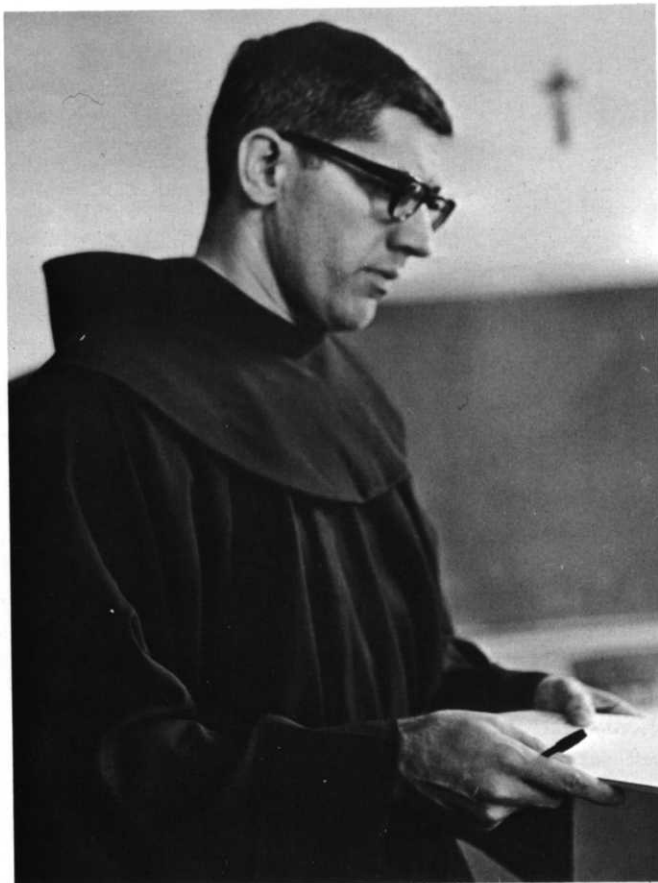

Padua's music lovers have much to owe to Father Brendan. Through his efforts the new music rooms were completed, giving music students a place for practice and entertainment. Father also conducts the band, orchestra and chorus, teaches algebra and religion, and is the moderator of the sophomores.

Fr. Austin Lewinski, O.F.M.

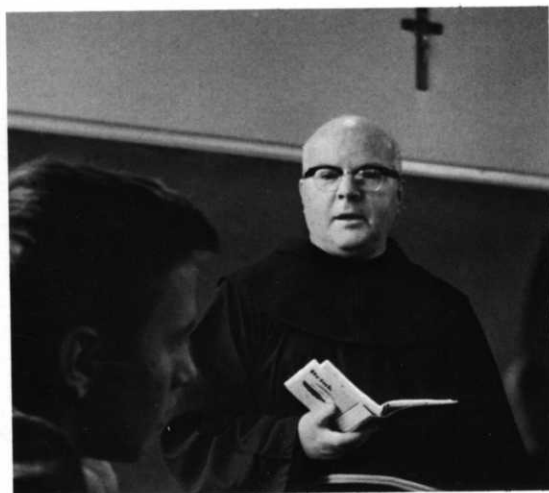

Father Austin has shared his enthusiasm for the outdoors by organizing the camper's club. He shows an appreciation of literature as head of the student library. Father also teaches Latin to the sophomores and seniors.

Faculty Reflect Ideals of Christian Character

Fr. Eric Skalski, O.F.M.

Father Eric was seriously injured in an unfortunate jeep accident in May of 1965. Since then, however, his improvement has been very swift. Father continues teaching the freshmen and juniors English, and is also the moderator of the Paduan.

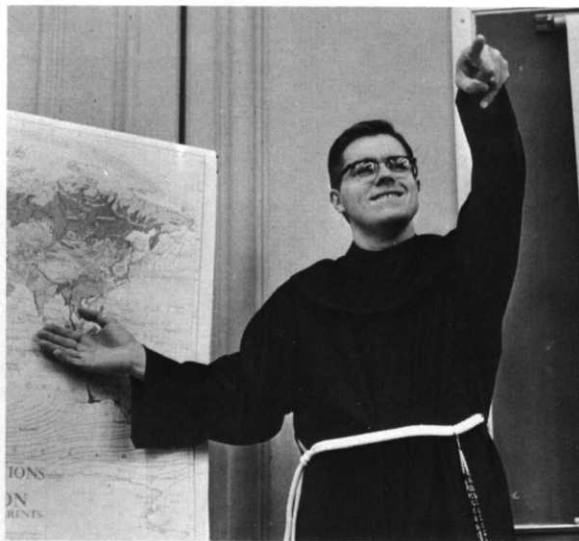

Fr. Cherubin Drag, O.F.M.

Father Cherubin is entering his third year at Padua. Typing, Polish and freshman religion are taught by him and he is also moderator of the junior class. He is one of the more popular priests at Padua, as students can always be seen flocking around him. Last year Father celebrated his silver jubilee in the Franciscan priesthood.

Fr. Reynold Jarecki, O.F.M.

Father Reynold is in his first year at Padua. Father has already become popular with the student body. He teaches chemistry, intermediate algebra and sophomore religion.

Fr. Cajetan Bogdanski, O.F.M.

The role of spiritual director for the student body is adequately filled by Fr. Cajetan. In addition, he is assistant librarian and head of the Third Order. Father teaches world geography, religion, Greek and chant.

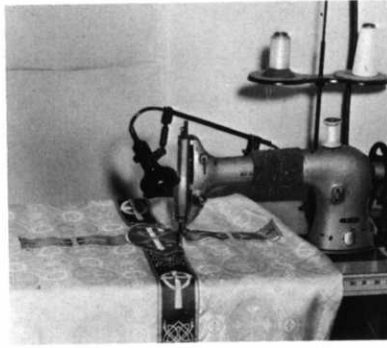

Mr. Joseph Lemak

Every Saturday morning the familiar cry of "toes on the line" greets the ears of all physical education students. Mr. Lemak is in charge of all the physical education classes. He brings with himself great knowledge of sports gymnastics, and marching which he imparts to his students. His students learn character, sportsmanship, and become more physically sound through "Coach's" efforts.

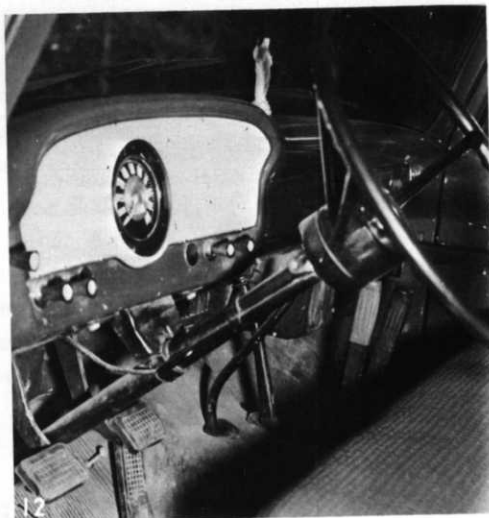

Fr. Placid Stroik, O.F.M.

Father Placid is a newcomer to the Padua campus. As vocational director, it is his job to visit various cities and counties in search of prospective students for Padua.

"To the victor belongs the spoils."

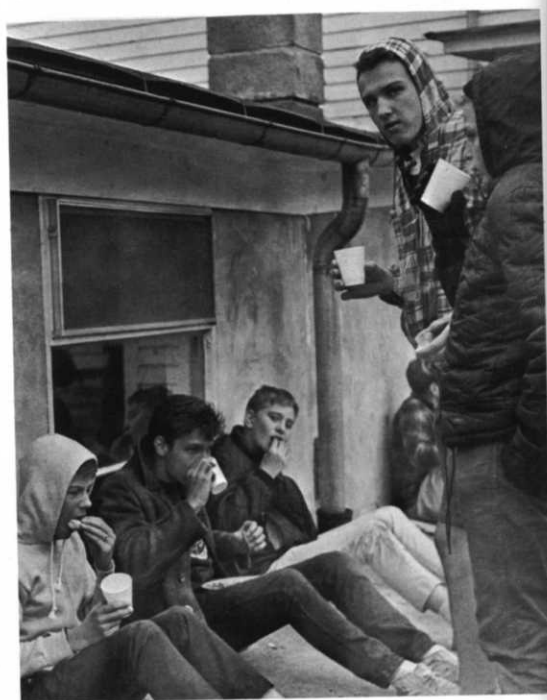

Smiling broadly, Steve Czajkowski keeps count of the spins-around of Zenon Dawidowicz in the Dizzy-Izzy race, while Fr. Emil acts as referee. In the background, Reginald Stanczyk crosses the finish line.

Sophomores leap high in their effort to win the jump stick relay.

Joe Jurewicz leads his senior team to victory in the hand-grasp relay.

George Popko, Tom Nied, Bob Nick, Roger Hetel and Wayne Kojcik eagerly enjoy the hot dogs and hot chocolate after the races.

Seniors Take Marathon

Tom Fatato and Adam Burch urge their classmates, Joe Narog and Kevin Glynn, to greater effort in the side-horse event.

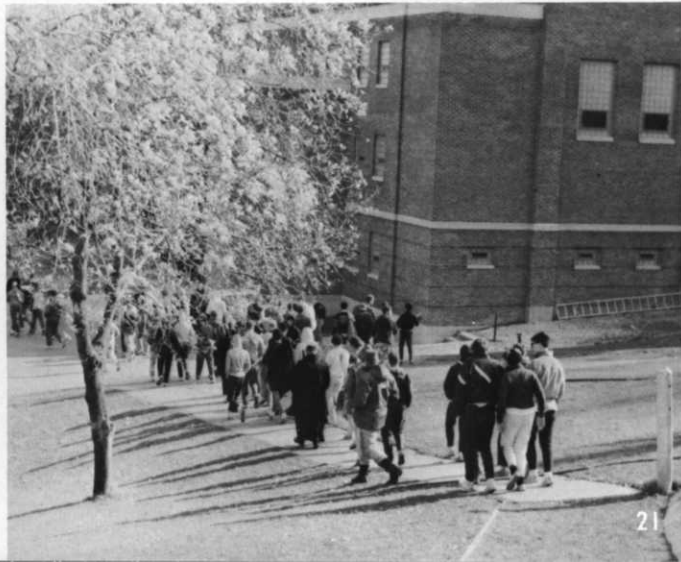

Paul Lesczynski and Richard Stoklosa await the near-collapse of Rich Prelich as he finishes the cross-country run.

Senior Joe Jurewicz wins the Marathon Cross Country run to take the James Franzese Memorial Trophy.

Fr. Emil gives the scores.

Exhausted but well-satisfied students leave the field; it was great fun.

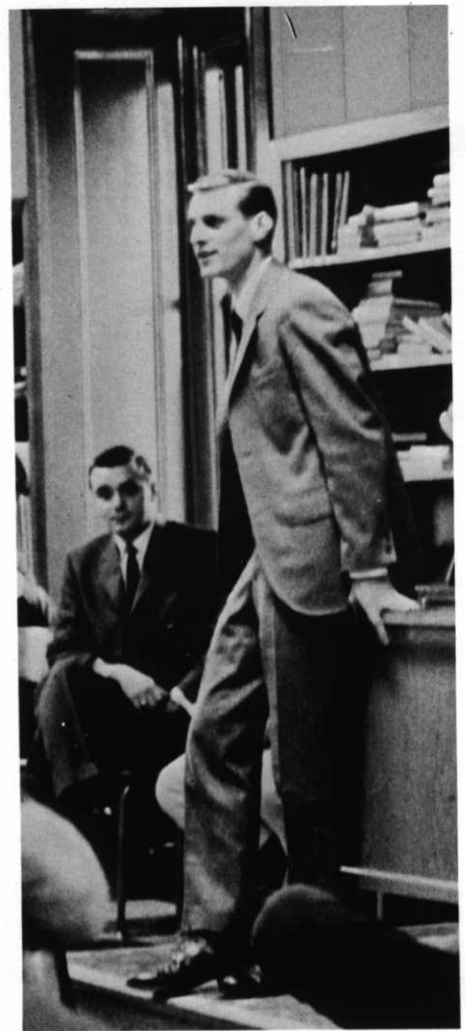

Career Day

Every year, a group of former Paduans return to their alma mater. The primary purpose for their visit is career day. The alumni relate experiences concerning the schooling, jobs, and problems to be encountered by Paduans in their future, post-graduate days.

Later in the day the alumni play football with the students. The day is topped off by a basketball game between the married and the unmarried alumni.

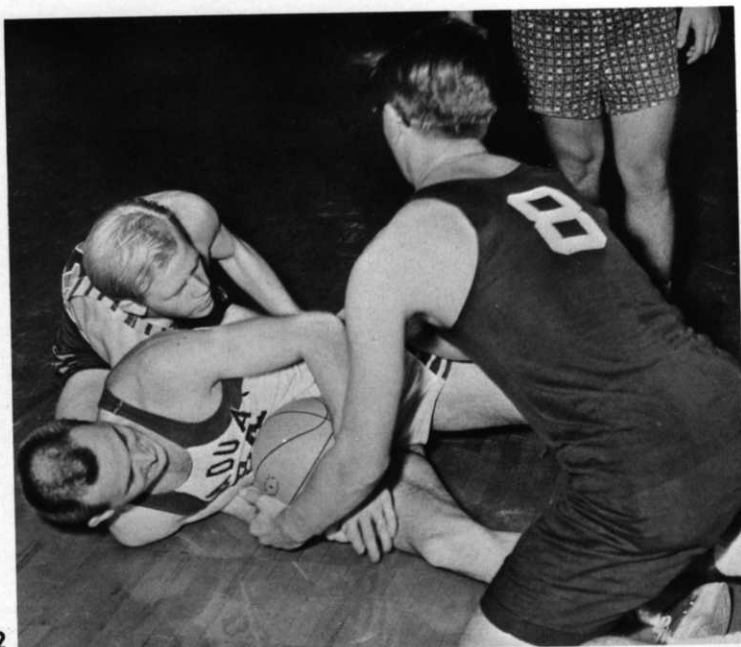

Students attentively absorb the facts about law school from lawyer Paul Golinski.

John Sowa, president of the Alumni Association, lectures on the advantages of being an English teacher.

Brian Bonner and Al Snopek fight for the ball in game won by the unmarried alumni.

"Hard work and many hours of study are needed to be successful," advised Bob Malina, who is working for his second Ph.D.

St. Didacus

A special day is set aside annually for commemorating the brothers. Each year, Fr. Brendan organizes the chorus to sing a few tunes in honor of the brothers. The brothers must surely appreciate this tribute to them, in thanks for all of their sacrifices.

The chorus supplied the songs . . .

. . . accompanied by Frank Snow and Vince Serzan . . .

Juniors Receive Long-Awaited Rings

On December 21, the day before Christmas vacation began, the juniors were overjoyed to learn that their overdue rings had finally arrived. That evening, in a short but impressive chapel ceremony, the rings were blessed and distributed by Father Cherubin Drag, O.F.M., the junior class moderator.

Class rings are considered important as they are an outward sign of the junior's status as an upperclassman. But they also have a deeper meaning, serving as a constant reminder to those who have received them to conduct themselves as ideal students, to be a credit to their school both now and in the future.

They will also help to recall later on the many events, both joyous and sorrowful, that have occurred during four years at Padua. Father Cherubin explained, in an inspiring talk after the ceremony itself, that they are called "memorial rings" as opposed to "promissory" or "institutional rings."

The ceremony closed with an exhortation by Fr. Cherubin to the Class of 1967 to always keep up the ideals that class rings commemorate.

Fr. Cherubin, junior class moderator, presides at the ceremonious blessing and distribution of the long-awaited class rings.

Christmas Party, Much Fun for All Involved

Don Prelich fulfills junior obligation of waiting on tables.

On December 20, the faculty and students held the annual Christmas party. The party began by a procession in which the smallest freshmen carried the infant Jesus. Led by Fr. Brendan, the entire student body sang "O come all ye faithful," as the procession proceeded from the chapel to the refectory. After Fr. Henry said grace, the officers of the classes began breaking the traditional wafer with the faculty. Fr. Mel, the youngest of the faculty members, gave an inspiring speech, which was followed by a band concert. To add some humor to the program, the senior class put on a humorous skit.

There was much laughter and fun when the presents were given out. That night everyone relived his childhood days playing with the toys they received. Although the students didn't have the opportunity to give, everyone enjoyed the party in a true Christmas spirit.

Edward Zawadzki, the smallest freshman, carries the infant Jesus.

Wonder what Mark Kiefer is thinking, as he gets a pie in the face from Fr. Mel at the Christmas party for a job well done?

Senior Al Costich has his eye on someone's gift as the presents from home are opened.

Steve Dziuba and Sterling Bollinger take time to pose for the camera before diving into the pile of presents to look for theirs.

Tom Malina and Andy Zawoyski kept little John Chamberlain so well entertained that Fr. Hyacinth gave the students an extra day for Christmas.

First, there are rooms to be cleaned and sheets to be brought down . . .

On Vacation Days

. . . then, there are tickets and money to be picked up . . .

. . . and then a train to be caught.

Andrew Zawoyski and Wayne Wojcik seem to have caught the cameraman, while Thomas Kaczmarek and John Mlynarski hurry to finish their French exam.

Exams . . . A Time for Studying

Lights burning late, students studying in the study hall during free time, seriousness—a combination of these three elements can only mean one thing—exams. Paduans prepare for and take exams four times a year. The importance of studying can never be overstressed.

Joe Biernat and Kenneth Suibielski concentrate on their biology exam.

Retreat Is a Time to Reflect

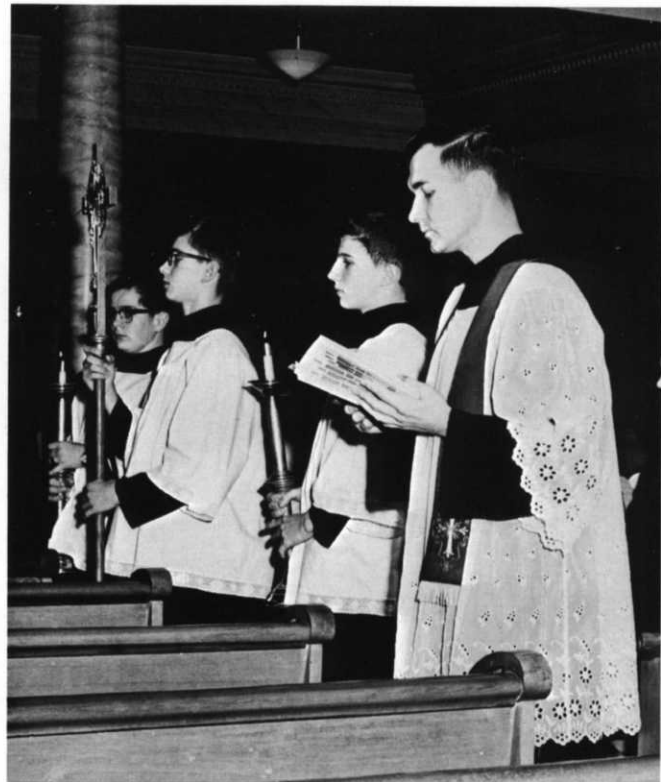

The annual retreat was somewhat different this year. Group discussions were held in which the students were allowed to voice their own opinion. Also songs with familiar melodies but religious words were sung, stressing the new outlook of the Church. Of course, the usual devotions and spiritual conferences were held.

Group discussions, something new this year, led by Sig Malinowski, proved to be quite rewarding.

Fr. Placid sprinkles some blessed salt on Michael Tyburczy's tongue.

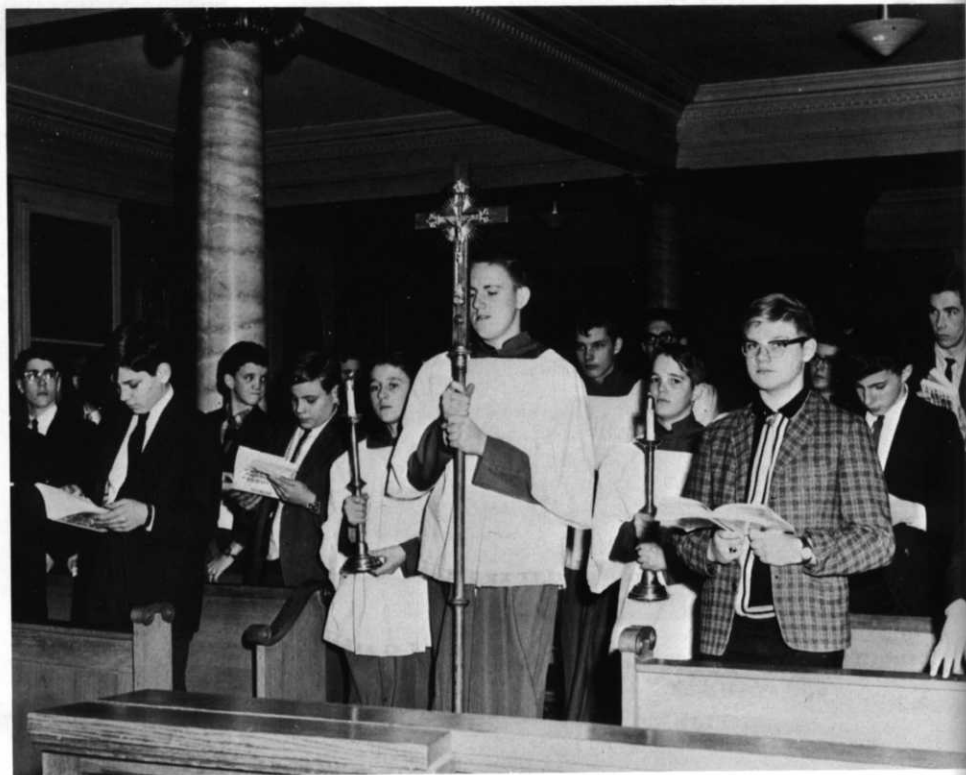

The student body is led at the Stations of the Cross by Fr. Placid, retreat master.

Thirteen Hour Devotion Ends Retreat

Immediately following the midyear Retreat, Thirteen Hour Devotion is held. This Devotion consists in adoration of the Blessed Sacrament by the students and faculty. Thirteen Hours is ended with an evening Mass.

Above: Fr. Placid ends Thirteen Hours with benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

Right: Stanley Martin leads the procession back to the alter after Mass.

Roger Hetel tries to sway the crowd's emotions with a sympathetic speech.

Juniors Take Part in Youth County

Steve Czajkowski stresses urban renewal projects in his bid for nomination.

Listening to other speeches, Steve Czajkowski and Chris Franzese compare notes to see how they stand in the primaries.

Youth County, an annual experiment on the local level, was again sponsored by the Schuyler County American Legion. The junior class of Padua, along with about 100 other juniors from other schools, participated this year.

Paduans captured three offices the highest being mayor won by Chris Franzese. Many new things were learned about politics and many new friends were made.

A group of Paduans become acquainted with members of their party.

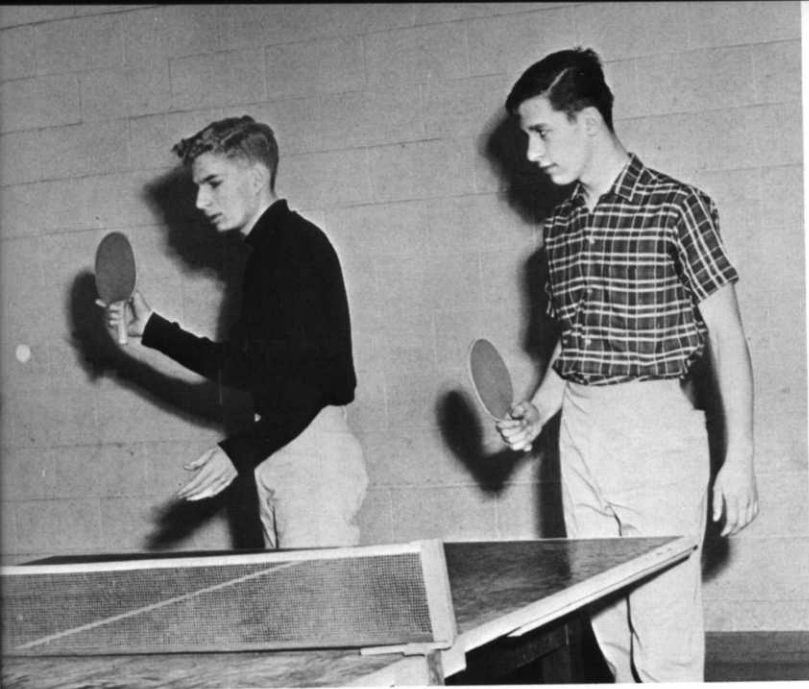

Vince Serzan, Wayne Wojcik, Martin Rembisz and Andy Zawoyski entertain with a few popular songs.

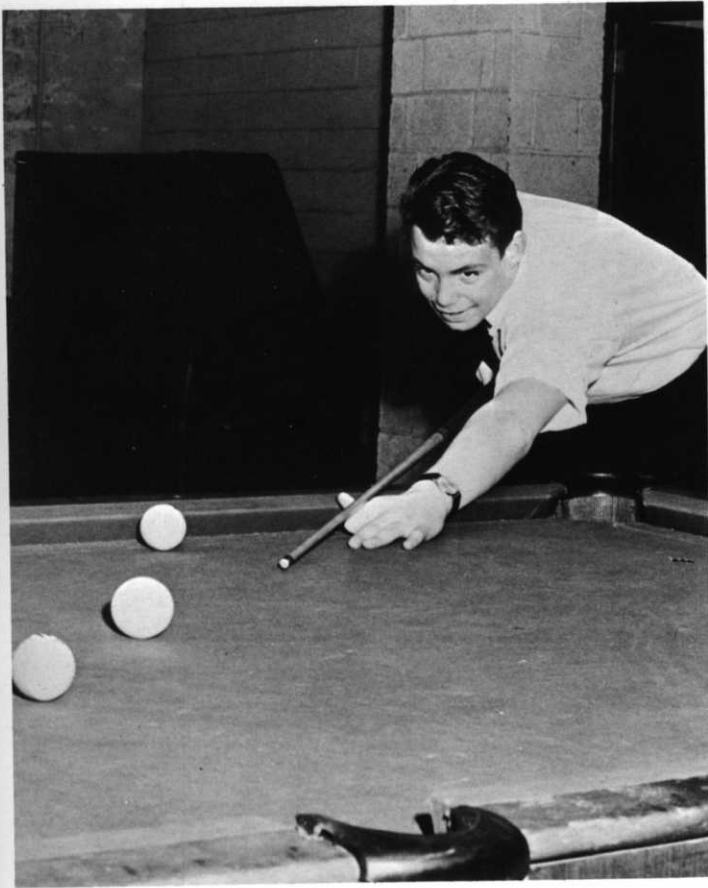

A delicious luncheon is enjoyed by Mike Korzeniewski, Reg Staczyk and Roger Hetel.

Tournaments Foster Good Sportsmanship

Greg Zagloba prepares to smash that poor ball as Danny Poplawski watches anxiously.

From the look on his face, John Arthur thinks he has the pool tournament in the bag.

Stan Martin sinks another one during the foul shooting contest.

Fr. Brendan conducts the band in concert.

Third Order Fosters Christian Ideals

The Third Order of Saint Francis, a laymen's order dedicated to following the ideals of Saint Francis, was moderated again this year by Father Cajetan Bogdanski, O.F.M.

Together with the officers he tried to instill into the Third Order members a fervent love of God and prayer and to help them live up to the rule and traditions of the Third Order of Saint Francis. Throughout the year, he stressed the fact that the Third Order was a way of life and not an extra-curricular activity.

The entire Third Order group, consisting of the older professed members, the novices and the postulants, endeavored to set a good example to the student body.

Some activities of the Third Order this year were the third annual pamphlet sale and a raffle.

Father Cajetan receives John Bognacki into the Third Order as a professed member.

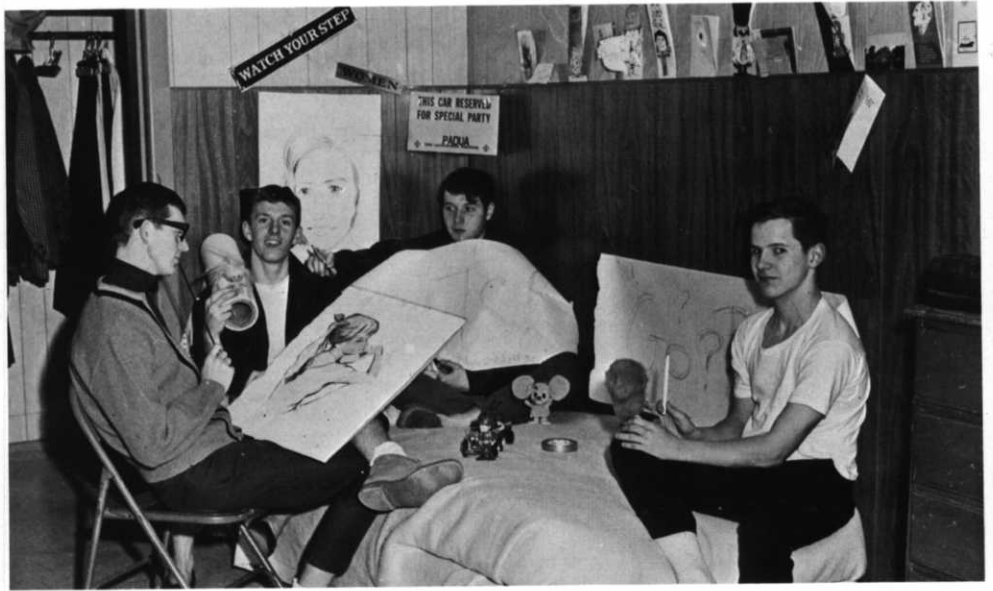

Kenneth Suibielski is given the scapular as he begins his year as a novice.

A tie with Addison and a victory over Savona opened this soccer season for the Cascaders who, although an inexperienced team, had high hopes for a winning season.

However, this lack of experience soon began taking its toll when Padua met the stronger teams of the league. After losing a close game to Hammondsport and another to Ithaca, almost all hopes died down. Fr. Emil kept drilling the team every day and finally had a victory. Padua defeated Campbell. As the last game of the season drew near, all hearts were set on winning. But fate had other things in store and so the team lost 2-0. Even with this discouraging season, we all know that the Cascaders played very good games.

Coach Chamberlain and the team look concerned as the team attempts to score.

Determination and Ability Combine to Take Championship

Coach Chamberlain shows his happiness seconds after the championship was won.

The basketball season opened with a cheerful outlook for the varsity. Mr. Chamberlain, who for his first full season took over the responsibilities as basketball coach, needed to put confidence into his team. "Coach" put more than confidence into the team, he put in a will to win.

The team, consisting of four seniors, four juniors and two sophomores, was very impressive in height and ability. These were our outstanding senior starters. Cliff Swirski, who led our scoring, was the best all-around player. Cliff will always be remembered for his long jump shot. Next, Joe Jurewicz was our leading man under the boards; tap ins were a regular with Joe. Joe was second in our individual scoring. Tom Malina, our other back court man with Cliff Swirski, was a magnificent play maker. Passing, dribbling, and defense, Tom was great in all of them.

An attitude "Nothing but the best is good for us" pulled through for the team. The varsity season closed with the best season record Padua has witnessed, 15 victories against 3 defeats. This year's team has a good reason to be proud. They are the 1965-1966 Lakes Region Conference Champions.

To a superb coach goes grand congratulations from athletic director Fr. Emil.

Cliff Swirski, Mark Kiefer and Jack Opiola do the "Freddie" with an opponent from Odessa.

Joe Jurewicz demonstrates his ability to draw fouls.

School spirit keeps the team morale high.

Joe Jurewicz, John Mlynarski and Cliff Swirski line up as Tom Malina gets ready for a foul shot against Ovid.

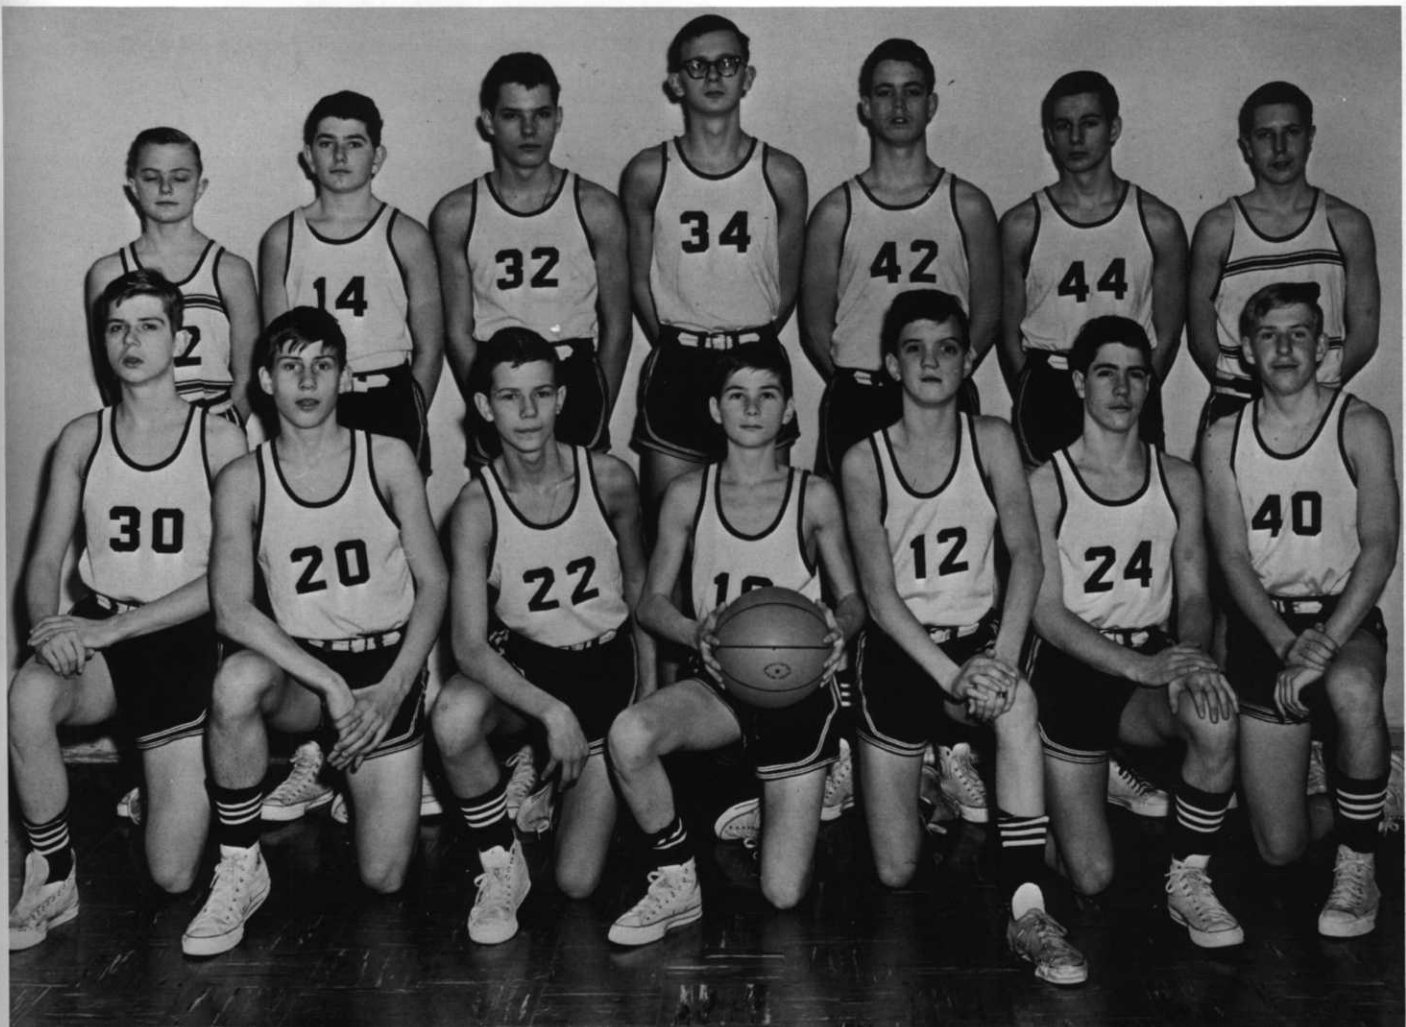

Junior Varsity

Lacking experience and height, the little Cascaders ended up with a 4-14 record. What has hurt the little cagers more than anything else this season has been a leaky defense and a slow offense at the start of the season. After the season got underway, the junior varsity received a boost from Steve Jurewicz and Henry Karsch, who just came to the team. Both showed the ability and great desire needed to form a good team.

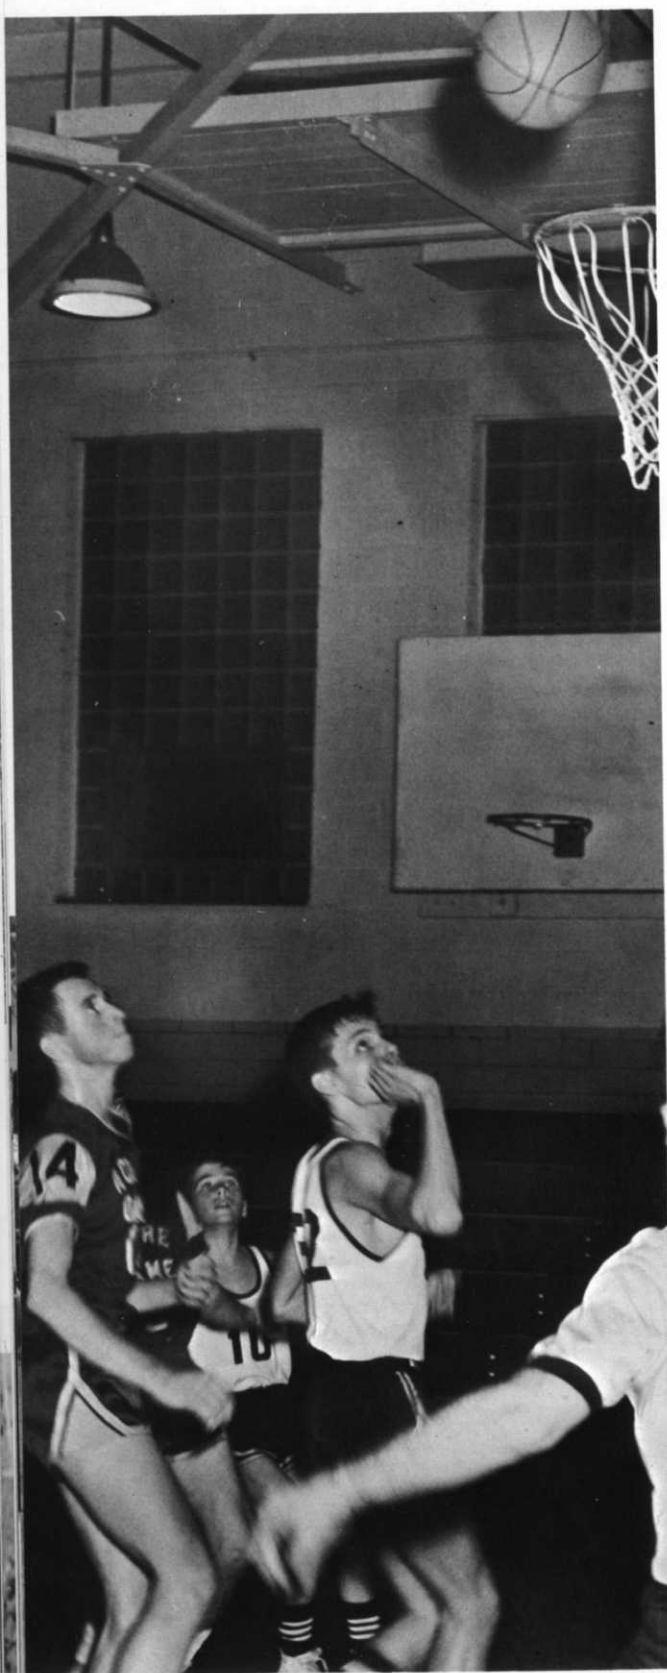

The team used a variety of defenses but mainly relied on a man-to-man defense. As the season came to a close, Fr. Emil changed his team to a close chasing man-to-man defense. Because of this, the Cascaders won the last two games. All in all the team shows the ability to take a championship before they graduate.

John Authür and Steve Jurewicz look on as Gus Kuklinski fights for rebound with Interlaken defender.

Standing: Zenon Dawidowicz, Stanley Shumski, Thomas Nied, August Kuklinski; John Aurthur, Gregory Kulig, Joseph Magiera. Kneeling: Stanley Romelczyk, Henry Karcsh, George Popko, Stephen Jurewicz, James Aurthur, Eugene Bollinger, Edward Scarp

Fr. Bertrand conducts the senior English course which contains both grammar and English Literature.

Charles Krauss looks up an answer in his book while Roger Hetel does an exercise during French class.

Languages Make an Important Background

Languages are becoming more important to students in our jet age world. At Padua, the student body is confronted with four years of Latin, four years of English, two years of French, and one year of Polish. In addition senior seminarians take Greek.

Prope
of Fr.

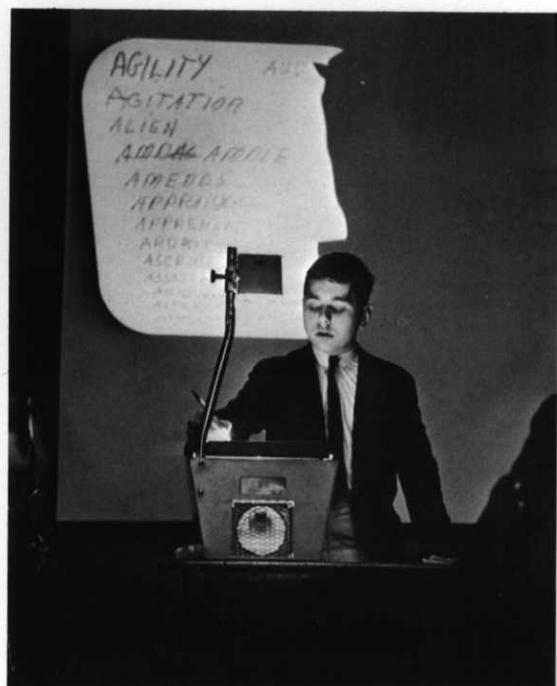

Fr. Bertrand reads a poem during senior English.

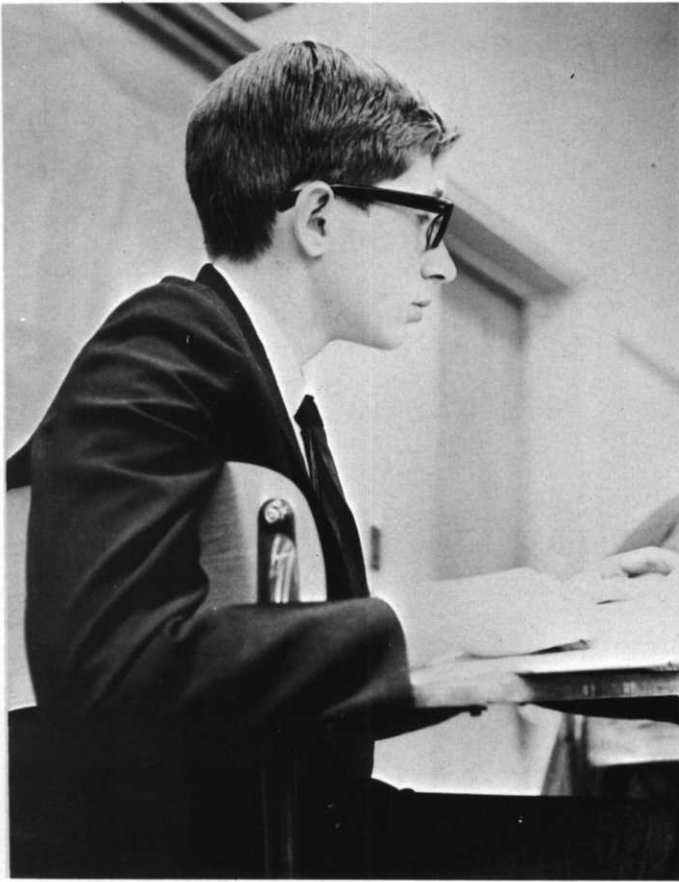

Joe Bartnikiewicz takes an open book test in French.

Proper enunciation in French is assured through the close guidance of Fr. Henry.

Charles Tomaszewski makes use of the projector to improve his spelling.

Stanley Stobierski concentrates on an algebra problem.

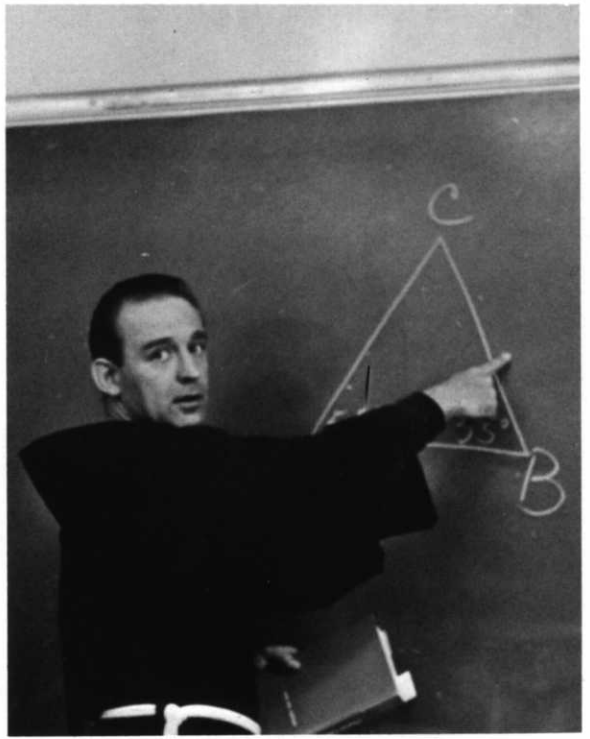

Math Prepares Future

Mathematics is now one of the most necessary subjects in our country. The country needs more scientists and mathematicians. Paduans are prepared for the future through algebra, plane geometry, intermediate algebra and trigonometry.

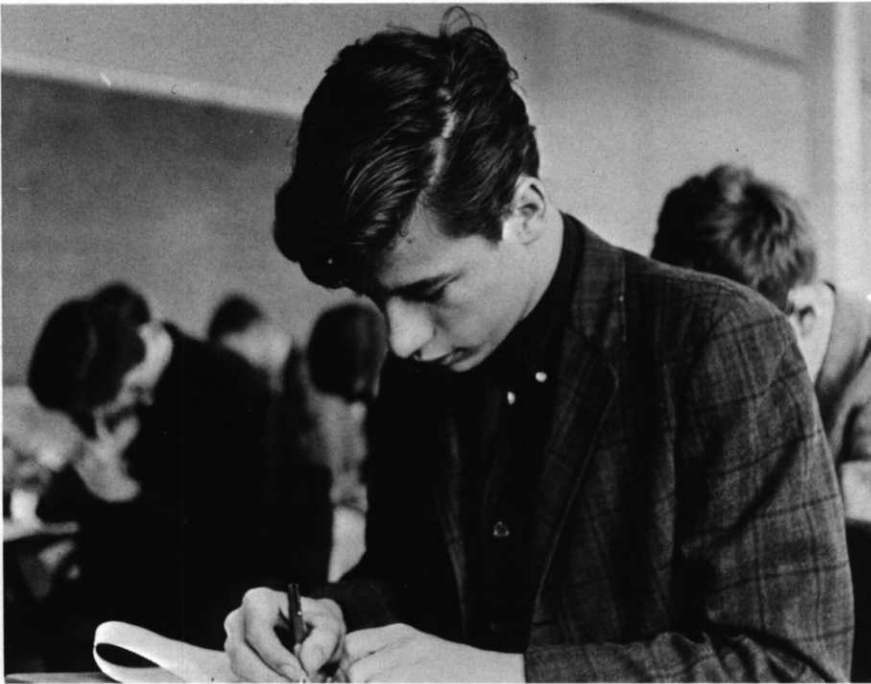

Gary Dikun, Randolph Heine and Robert Nick consult their algebra books as a correction is being made on the board.

Students for Life

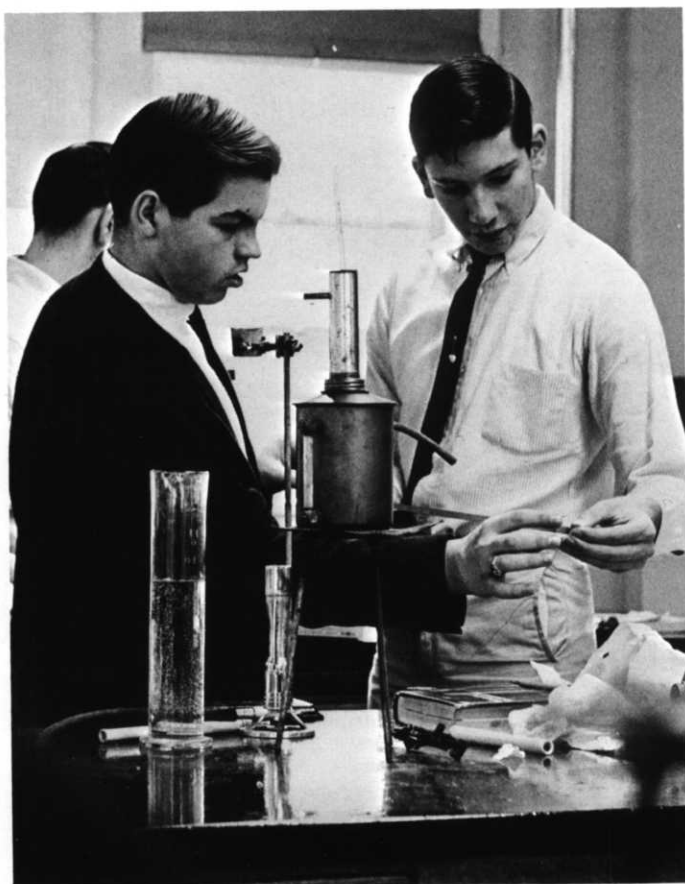

Fr. Mel explains to the sophomores that the sum of all the angles in a triangle is 180° .

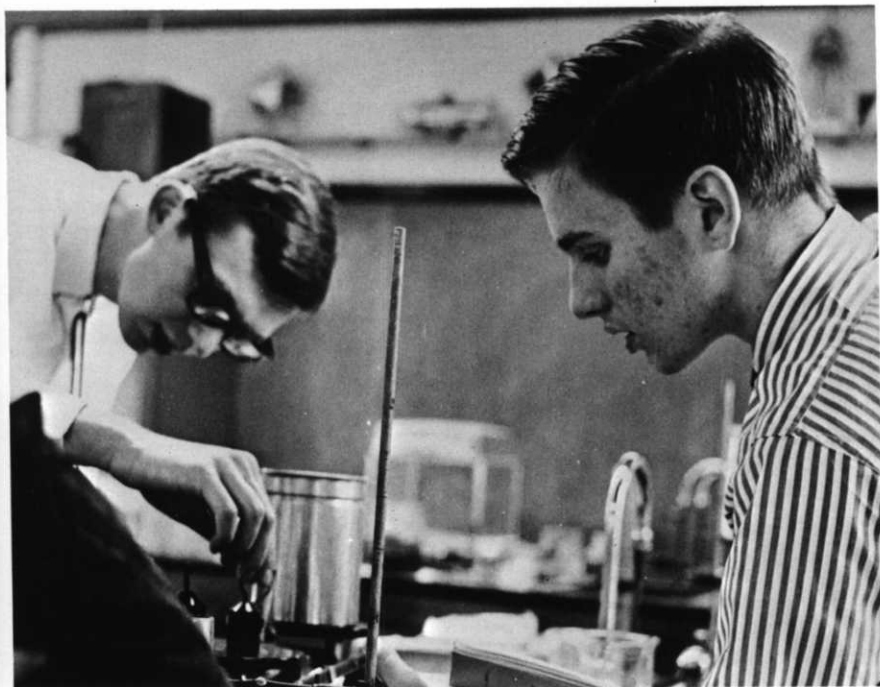

Danny Poplawski struggles through a trigonometry test.

Science Courses Provide Experimentation

At Padua, sciences play an important part in the curriculum. General science, biology, physics, and chemistry, a new subject, are the science courses Paduans take.

Sigismund Malinowski and Ralph Tokarz are engrossed in their work in the lab.

A plant growth experiment occupies the attention of Tony Dabrowski and Andy Zawoyski during biology class.

Mike Korzeniewski, Steve Czajkowski, Chris Franzese, Tom Kaczmarek and Roger Hetel aren't afraid to dissect worms in Father Albin's class.

Father Cajetan, freshman geography prof, gives George Popko his test paper.

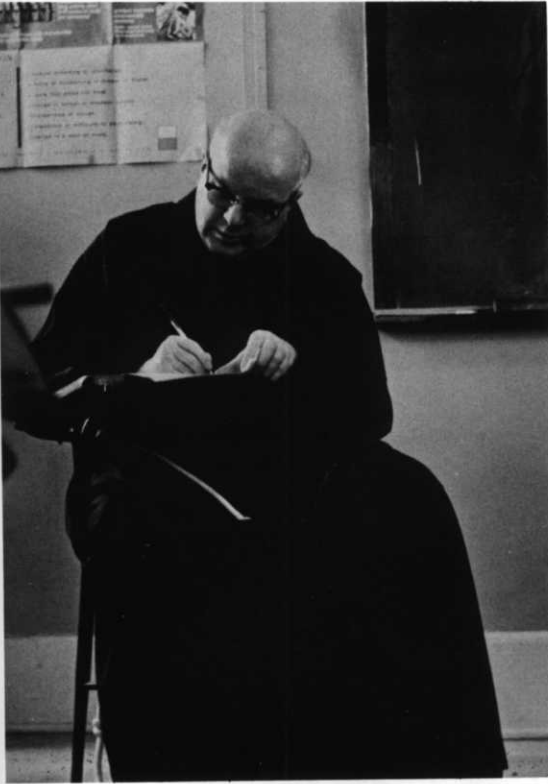

World History class with Father Roland—"how interesting" Sophomore Paul Lesczynski seems to be thinking.

Social Studies Explore Politics

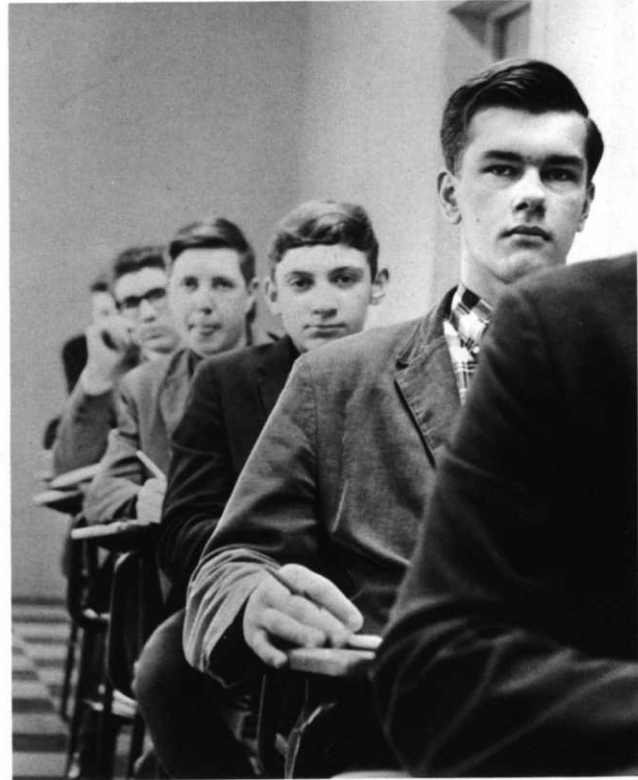

Robert Nick concentrates on writing his geography test, while Tom Nied gropes for an answer.

Study in Our Faith

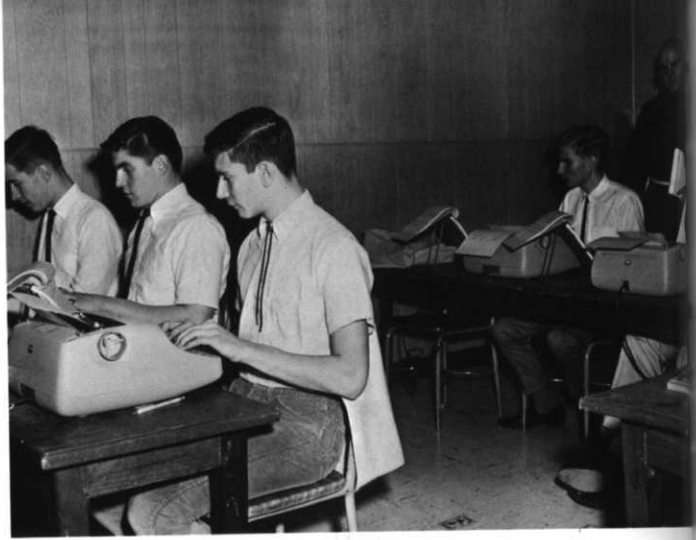

Father Cherubin, freshman religion teacher, corrects one test while administering another.

Fred Bagdzinski and Joe Magiera seem to be paying attention to sophomore religion teacher, Father Reynold, but Mark Adamski likes having his picture taken.

Eugene Bollinger appears to be the model student during Fr. Cherubin's class ... or is it just because he knows our cameraman is here?

Seniors concentrate on not making any mistakes. Father Cherubin supervises the typing class.

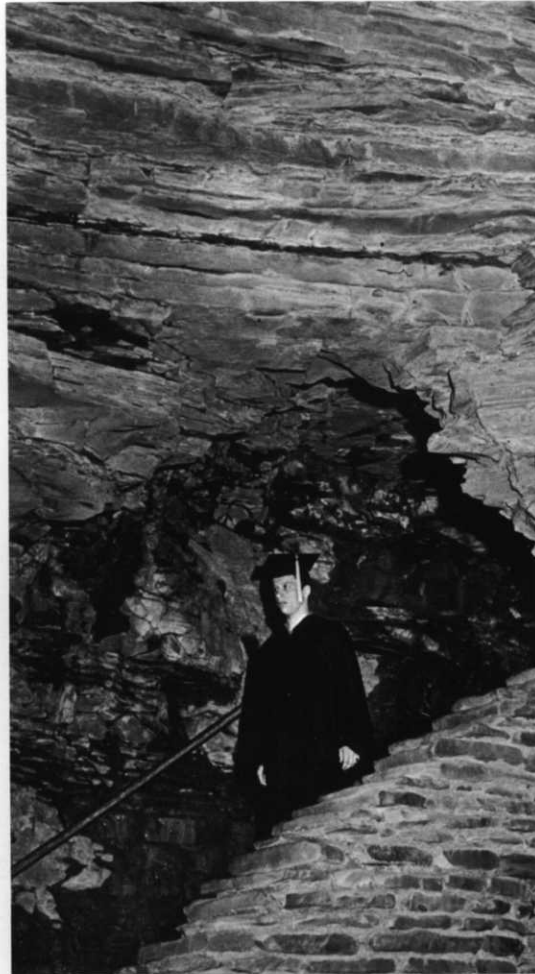

Danny Poplawski executes a basic move on the horse during phys. ed. class while Ralph Tokarz thinks, "Now why can't I do that," and Ed Drost prays for deliverance.

Seniors form a simple pyramid during coach Lemak's morning class.

John Opiola and the rest of the class are absorbed in learning from Father Austin's better reading skills.

Moderators Will Always Be Remembered

Fr. Farrel Glab, O. F. M.

In the beginning of the freshman year, there were many new faces on the campus. Among them were those of the freshman class and the new moderator of the freshman class, Fr. Farrel Glab, O.F.M. Fr. Farrel quickly became attached to his class. He always gave encouragement and informed us what to expect in the outside world. By the sophomore year, we were surprised to learn of Fr. Farrel's hobby, geology. We left him at the end of the sophomore year, hoping he would find what he was looking for.

Fr. Mel Baran, O. F. M.

At the beginning of our junior year, we were surprised to learn that Fr. Farrel had been transferred. But we quickly became attached to our new moderator, Fr. Mel Baran, O.F.M. In the last two years, Fr. Mel has probably done more for us than any other priest. He sticks up for us in any class projects, he encourages us and boosts our morale. Certainly, he will never be forgotten by anyone in the senior class.

As the 1965-1966 school year draws to a close, there are many things that each student holds as a dear memory of Padua High. Things have not always been as you wanted them to be, but all things have many times worked together for the good.

Now as you go your separate ways, not knowing if happiness or sorrow will cross your path, hold the thoughts of your days spent in Padua as the happiest of your life. Turn to this rambling structure which houses the best of students and simply say, "Thanks for the memory."
